

Biokinetics offers a wide range of specialized testing equipment for evaluating the performance of protective products from helmets to body armor and even mouth guards. A variety of threats can be simulated in terms of mass, shape and energy to reproduce real world hazards or adhere to those described in recognized product performance standards. We can provide turnkey or custom solutions to meet your test equipment needs with proven designs and excellent technical support.

{gallery}products/main{/gallery}